

House Democrats Will Urge President Not to Call Special Session

Influential Group Feels Such a Session Might Increase Party Dissension Before Wounds Have Healed.

DECISION SOON

Representative Miller Says That Roosevelt Will Tell Plans in Few Days.

Washington, Aug. 24 (AP)—A group of influential House Democrats expressed strong opposition today to a special congressional session in the fall on the grounds it might increase party dissension. One leader who preferred not to be mentioned by name said "No practical good and maybe some harm" would come from a special session on farm and wage-hour legislation. He said he and others of the same view would advise President Roosevelt before leaving the capital.

He argued time was needed to allow heated tempers to cool and that it would be poor policy for the President to run the risk of reopening party strife in October or November.

Many members, he said, might feel none too kindly toward the administration and its legislative program if they were summoned back to Washington while in the midst of building political fences for next year's election.

To the contention that action on a farm bill and wage-hour measure in the fall would permit shortening the regular January session, this party chief said that a special session would not mean "taking 15 minutes off the regular session."

Some House members nevertheless said they would prefer to have the farm and labor standards issues disposed of in a special session, and talk persisted that the President would call one.

Believes Session Desirable
Rep. Miller (D-Ark.) said he thought a special session might be desirable.

Miller talked to the President yesterday and predicted afterwards that Mr. Roosevelt would announce in a few days whether he will call one.

Speaker Bankhead at Birmingham predicted yesterday the session would be called.

Secretary Wallace left the White House yesterday asserting he favored a special meeting and several legislators who have seen Mr. Roosevelt in the past few days indicated the Chief Executive was considering the possibility strongly.

One reported the President considered an extra session would be almost imperative should he feel compelled to veto the sugar control bill.

The President objected, prior to passage of the bill, to the restrictions it places on shipments of refined sugar from Hawaii and Puerto Rico.

REORGANIZATION FIGHT SEEN IN NEXT CONGRESS

Washington, Aug. 24 (AP)—Congressional opponents of President Roosevelt's government reorganization plan already are collecting new ammunition to use against the proposal which may furnish one of the major controversies of the next session.

Senator Byrd (D-Va.) has begun a recent study of federal agencies, to prepare a new campaign against the President's version of what should be done toward regrouping federal bureaus.

The Virginia senator, chairman of a special Senate committee on reorganization, charged that the President's recommendations would concentrate too much power in the White House and would effect no real economies.

Senator Clark (D-Mo.) joined him, asserting they were "as bad as the court plan" and ought to be rejected.

Byrd's committee has $15,000 left out of $25,000 expense allotments with which to make its studies.

Administration forces in the Senate have answered by contending that under the President's plan economies would follow improved efficiency as a matter of course.

Infantile Paralysis
Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 24 (AP)—Five new cases of infantile paralysis reported in Buffalo caused federal health authorities to establish a close watch today on the Canadian border for possible carriers seeking entrance to the United States. Buffalo Health Commissioner Francis E. Fronczak said the new cases brought the total reported here to fourteen. Two victims have died.

Ulster Farmers to Hold Field Day at Park, Wednesday

The farmers are coming to town—and along with them will assemble countless numbers of city folks who are interested in the annual county fair and picnic which this year is held under the name of the Farmers' Field Day. The event will take place at Forsyth Park on Wednesday, August 25, and will feature a program which includes things of interest to all. The exhibits will open at 10 o'clock in the morning, but in case of inclement weather, these exhibits will be shown the following day.

The Field Day is held under the auspices of the Ulster County Agricultural Society with the following committee in charge of arrangements: Albert Kurdt, Harry J. Beatty, Edmund R. Bower, Frank E. Gaffney, Cyril G. Small, J. C. Barnes, A. H. Chambers, Pratt Boice, John J. Miller, Harold V. Story, and Miss Everice Parsons.

Music for the fine program will be furnished by the Ulster 4-H Club Band. There will be extensive farm and home exhibits, a baseball game, tennis, horseback riding, and other sports.

The official premium list is divided into departments and shows the following exhibits: Horses, cattle, poultry, fruit, home-making, granges, educational, junior, educational, 4-H achievements.

The annual get-together of the Ulster county farmers and their friends has always been a gala occasion in this territory. Crowds have gathered year after year to attend this affair, not only to enjoy a day of recreation and amusement, but also to learn new methods whereby life "down on the farm" becomes easier and more pleasant than ever before. In days past this county picnic and fair was the red-letter day in the life of the farmer and his family because it was on that day that all the necessary chores of farm life ceased. Today because of the new inventions which have had their introduction in a great measure through county fairs and field days, the farmer and his family enjoy more leisure time but—the county fair still remains a red-letter day.

MYSTERIOUS MONTAGUE RETURNS TO FACE CHARGE.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 24 (AP)—Mysterious John Montague—silent as ever—arrived in Albany today on the last lap of a transcontinental trip to face charges at Elizabethtown, N. Y., for a $700 Essex county holdup committed in 1930.

The dapper California golf wizard, grinning engagingly, walked briskly through the Albany station to change trains. He engaged in low-voiced conversation with his attorney, James J. Noonan, and Jack Quiler, both of Albany, but said nothing to reporters.

Soulier described himself as "an old friend of Montague's." Noonan, previous to Montague's arrival told reporters that he did not think an arraignment would take place today. The attorney boarded the train, saying he would "ride as far as Saratoga Springs," a distance of 55 miles.

Sergeant Paul McGinnis, one of two state troopers who escorted Montague from Los Angeles after he unexpectedly waived New York state extradition charges, said that the party would leave the city at Port Henry, N. Y. McGinnis said the trip to Elizabethtown, Essex county seat, would be completed by automobile.

Henry N. Peters Badly Burned at Service Station

Henry N. Peters, who conducts a service station on Albany avenue extension, was seriously burned this morning while at work about his station but the exact cause of the accident could not be learned as he was working alone at the time and no one apparently saw the accident.

Mrs. Peters stated that she believed he had been working on repairs to the roof of the station and had been heating tar over a gasoline stove when his clothing caught fire. He suffered very severe burns. Deputy Sheriff Arthur Brown and Deputy Ray Winkler, who were enroute to Saugerties happened along and went to the rescue of Mr. Peters, who was taken to the Kingston Hospital where he was placed under the care of Dr. John F. Larkin and two trained nurses.

The interior of the building was damaged by fire and the fire truck from Wilkes station was summoned but on arrival the flames had been extinguished.

Sergeant Charles Phinney and man of great strength is also possessed of great energy as well as having the gift of command. One of his first acts when he was the first of a man armed with a revolver, the latter's home. The police department had received a telephone call that the police were wanted at a certain address where there was an armed man who was acting strangely, as though deranged. Phinney responded to the call for aid. When he learned the man's identity he knew with whom he had to deal. The man was on the second floor of the house and when he heard the sergeant speaking downstairs he descended a narrow flight of stairs. Phinney urged him to give himself up and advanced toward the bottom of the stairs as he spoke. The man threatened to shoot but Phinney proceeded on up the stairs and took the gun away from the man. Afterward he confessed that he did not know why he realized that the man would not carry out his threat to shoot. This is only an incident in Phinney's career.

Lieutenant Simpson became a member of the police department on April 12, 1935, as a patrolman, and after serving for some years he was promoted to sergeant as the result of a civil service examination. Before becoming a member of the police department Simpson served as street superintendent during the administration of Roscoe Irwin as mayor of the city. While serving as junior sergeant of the police department Lieutenant Simpson has made an enviable name for himself as a capable officer. He also has taken an active part in the solving of many of the crimes in the city that have been brought to the attention of the police department. He also is endowed with a fund of common sense and his courage is unquestioned.

Lehman Urges Labor Use Strike as Weapon Of Last Resort to Ends

Governor Calls Attention to Agencies Providing Media to Adjust Labor Disputes in New York State.

HAILE PROGRAM

Calls Two Boards Created by Last Legislature Beginning of New Program.

Jamestown, N. Y., Aug. 24 (AP)—Governor Herbert H. Lehman urged the State Federation of Labor today to view the strike as the "last weapon" in industrial disputes.

"Happily, our state agencies provide media which can be used to clarify and adjust labor disputes," the governor told delegates to the federation's annual convention. "Their services are available at all times."

He referred chiefly to the State Labor Relations Board, both established under laws passed by the 1937 Legislature, and characterized by the governor as "a new type of social institution."

Making his eighth consecutive appearance before a state federation convention, Mr. Lehman addressed an opening session that heard several other speakers, including Attorney-General John J. Bennett, Jr.

"While the right to strike is expressly and wisely preserved by the state laws," the governor declared, "it is not to be used as the first and only weapon in labor disputes but rather as the last weapon when all other means of peaceful settlement have failed."

Pointing to the labor relations board and the board of mediation, he asserted "it is by the development of such social institutions that liberty of individual action is reconciled with the general needs of the whole community."

"Their full success," the governor said of both boards, "will depend on the degree of support they receive from employers, workers and the public."

He firmly believed that the vast majority of industrial disputes can be adjusted without resort to conflict which is usually costly to both sides and frequently leaves wounds of ill-will and suspicion which require years to heal.

The chief executive said 182 cases already have been brought before the labor relations board, "many of which have already been disposed of."

The mediation board, has considered 112 cases and has accepted 86 for mediation, of which many have been settled, he said, "or are in process of settlement."

Pointing to what he termed "a truly significant program" of social legislation, the governor called the adoption of a minimum wage law for protection of women and minors in industry "one of the principal achievements of the 1937 Legislature."

BEER AND COAL TRUCKS
CRASH, TWO MEN INJURED
Hackettstown, N. J., Aug. 24 (AP)—Two men were injured, one critically, in a truck accident today on Route 6 near here.

Paul Jones of White Plains, N. Y., was severely burned and suffered a broken leg when a coal truck, in which he was riding, collided with a beer truck, overturned and caught fire.

Lee Corbett, also of White Plains and driver of the coal truck, suffered minor bruises but escaped from the cab before the flames trapped Jones who was later removed by Hackettstown firemen.

A Holstein of Orange, driver of the beer truck, was uninjured. Physicians at a Dover hospital described Jones' condition as "extremely critical."

Important Town Of Ulster School Meeting Tonight

One of these times, not unknown in the annals of school meetings, is looked for tonight when the voters of School District No. 8, town of Ulster, are scheduled to gather in the Peto Boire hall, Plank Road, to discuss and vote on three propositions to provide transportation for pupils of the district.

The meeting is called for 7:30 tonight, the call having been issued by Trustee Gordon A. Craig in response to a petition bearing the signatures of 160 voters of the district. Mr. Craig was elected trustee of the district at the annual meeting last May, succeeding John McCreery, who had served the district for many years as trustee.

The proposition was voted down at the last annual meeting. The present demand is stated as backed largely by residents of the Lincoln Park section of the district.

Three Propositions
Submitted to the voters tonight: Shall the district authorize transportation for the pupils being instructed under contract?

Shall the district increase the budget to cover the cost of transportation of the pupils being instructed under contract?

Shall the district authorize the trustee to raise by tax a sum sufficient to provide for the maintenance of pupils who are being instructed under contract?

Mr. Craig said this morning, when seen by a Freeman reporter, that about 200 pupils from District No. 8 are being sent to Kingston schools at this time. This number about 60 attend high school. He added that the best available figures, obtained from other districts which provide transportation, showed that it costs about $40 a year to provide transportation. "This would mean that it would cost around $12,000 a year to furnish transportation for all pupils of the district."

School District No. 8 has an assessed valuation, as of last year's assessment, totaling about $500,000. The tax rate for the district last year was $10.90 per thousand of assessed valuation, the amount raised being about $5,000.

It is estimated that if the plan being considered goes through and it will mean a tax rate, for the first year of three or four times the present rate and a permanent rate, as relief is obtained through additional state money, of at least two and a half times the present rate.

School District No. 8 is a district without a school house—its handicapped by its extreme length, running as it does from Flatbush avenue, on the north of Kingston, around the city and in the east of the Roseendale boulevard. An idea of the territory it covers may be obtained from Trustee Craig's statement that he drove about 25 miles in order to post notices of the special meeting and returned home, running to the Cherry Hill farm on the Sawkill road and to the Pratt Boice road, off the Saugerties road.

There are eight main "roads" into the district: the Roseendale boulevard, Linderman avenue, Lucas avenue, Hurley avenue, the Plank road, Sawkill road, Albany avenue and Flatbush avenue.

Sheriff Molyneux will assign a deputy to attend the meeting tonight to assist in handling traffic and keep things running smoothly.

SHELLED

Pointed Note Is Directed by Hull To China, Japan

Washington, Aug. 24 (AP)—A pointed, public statement from Secretary Hull emphasized to Japan and China today the United States' view that world opinion demanded a peaceful settlement of their dispute.

Telling the two nations that a threat of serious hostilities concerned all others, Hull said "We urge that they settle their differences in accordance with principles which in the opinion of most peoples of the world should govern in international relations."

"Without attempting to pass judgment regarding the merits of the controversy," he said, "we appeal to the parties to refrain from resort to war."

His words prompted new speculation over possible further action by the United States. There was considerable likelihood, however, the government would break the three-month-old neutrality act unless China and Japan severed diplomatic relations.

President Roosevelt must invoke the act when he holds that a state of war exists between two countries. It automatically nullifies shipments of arms, munitions and implements of war, as well as loans to those nations.

Wants Both Sides
Hull's statement came at almost the same time Admiral Harry E. Yarnall, commander in chief of the United States Asiatic fleet, reported to the Navy Department he had warned both sides "to exercise more care" in directing their fire.

Yarnall said a special board of investigation had not been able to decide whether it was a Japanese or Chinese shell which killed one sailor and injured 18 on his flagship, the Aurora, last week.

Hull's statement last night said the United States felt that the principles of American international policy be maintained July 16 are applicable throughout the world.

Rising Sun Lands Thousands of Little Brown Warriors Near Woosung Forts Led by Shirodasukitai.

U. S. SHOWS TEETH
American Destroyer Uncovers Guns to Escort Liner Through Fighting to Sea.

(By The Associated Press)
Offensive—Japanese troops, planes and warships started big push against hordes of Chinese regulars and irregulars at Shanghai. Thousands of little brown warriors landed near Woosung forts. Sea and land plans conveyed the air. Japanese said they advanced about two miles in different spots, driving to flank Chinese forces from north.

Shirodasukitai—Seventy Japanese of "Shirodasukitai", or White Band of Death, led Japanese land forces. They wore white sashes; were prepared to die for the emperor.

Teeth—One of Uncle Sam's destroyers showed its teeth to warring Chinese and Japanese. The Edsall, with uncovered guns, escorted liner President Pierce safely to sea through midst of hostile artillery and air fighting. The liner carried 212 American refugees bound for Manila.

Nutcracker—Three Chinese divisions squeezed military nutcracker some 500 miles north of Shanghai in attempt to smash 30,000 Japanese troops bogged down by rain 30 miles southwest of Peiping. One division pointed on front while other two flanked leading to Japanese supply bases. A major battle developed along 150-mile northern front.

Appeal—Secretary Hull appealed to China and Japan to "refrain from resort to war."

Emergency—Japan's Emperor Hirohito called emergency session of Parliament to meet September 3; did to consider way and means of footing war bill.

Crack—Crack Chinese advance guards swept around both flanks of the Japanese army southwest of Peiping today and struck simultaneously in an effort to pinch off the 30,000 Japanese troops immobilized there by torrential rains.

Major battle with at least a quarter of a million men engaged was developing along a 150-mile front. China's modernized army was attacking from four directions to thrust the Japanese army out of conquered northeast China.

The Japanese front 30 miles southwest of Peiping was in danger of being snapped off by the surprise Chinese strategy and attack apprehension was apparent in all the Japanese areas south and west of Peiping.

All Japanese troops were hurriedly withdrawn from their extended positions west of Peiping and concentrated on the east bank of the Yanting river in the Fenai and Wanpingchih suburbs of Peiping and in Peiping proper.

Japanese warplanes were bombing the entire area from Nentoum, 20 miles west of Peiping, to a point 40 miles to the southeast on the Peiping-Tientsin railway.

Three Divisions Active
From a strong advance base at Chochow, the Chinese army thrust three divisions against the Japanese positions at Lianshiang, five miles to the north.

One division made a show of force against the Japanese frontal positions while one sped past each flank and then struck. The Chinese left wing advanced as far as Mentouk before it pivoted while the right wing penetrated to Kancha, 10 miles south of the Marco Polo bridge across the Yanting at Wanpingchih.

This placed both arms of the pincer well in the rear of the main body of Japanese at Lianshiang. It was almost impossible for reinforcements and supplies to reach the main army. Roads to Lianshiang were choked with hundreds of Japanese truck stuck in the mud and abandoned.

Traffic Mired
Nearly all traffic was mired at Changsien, just beyond Marco Polo bridge, and the Japanese were commandeering mules and pack animals and all kinds of carts and wagons in an effort to get through to the front.

Japanese dead and wounded were being brought into Peiping, indicating that a battle of major proportions was being fought to the southwest.

Twenty truck loads of dead were brought into Peiping today in one convoy, black flags dipping somberly as they chugged slowly over the rutted roads.

In the Tientsin sector of the huge semi-circular front, Chinese forces were pressing the Japanese back. Reports from the front

Hours of Labor For Truck Drivers

Albany, Aug. 23.—The cooperation of state troopers, city police, magistrates and justices of the peace in country towns throughout the state is aiding materially in the enforcement of the provisions of the Labor Law regulating the hours of labor of motor truck and bus drivers by the State Department of Labor and is making definite contribution to the state's highway safety campaign this summer. State Industrial Commissioner Elmer L. Andrews stated today on the occasion of his promulgating revised Administrative Regulations under the law. The motor driver's section (Section 167) was first incorporated in the Labor Law in 1932 but amendments were enacted in 1936 and 1937 to make it more effective, and during the past year there has been a rather intensive campaign on the part of the Labor Department to enforce it 100 per cent.

For the past year or so, the motor driver's section of the Labor Law has required the keeping of a daily time record by the driver and the carrying of the record on his vehicle. Failure to be able to show such a record is violation of the law. Most of the arrests are made on this charge and result in conviction of drivers and the imposition of five dollar fines. One driver recently arrested admitted that he had been driving continuously for 21 hours. The law restricts drivers of commercial motor vehicles, including taxicabs, to 10 hours work in any 14 consecutive hours, and requires an eight-hour rest period between such work periods. The law is designed not only to prevent exploitation of labor but also to promote safety on the highways, Commissioner Andrews said.

The principal 1937 amendments to this section of the Labor Law were as follows:

Specifying that during periods of relief from duty, drivers "shall be free from and off the truck or bus and free from work of any kind."

Requiring exhibition on the demand of the Industrial Commissioner or his representative (as well as on the demand of any state policeman or peace officer) of the daily time record required to be kept by drivers and carried on their vehicles.

Requiring such daily time records to be kept available for further inspection by the authorities for a period of 60 days within the state of New York in an office designated by the owner of a motor truck and/or motor bus.

Requiring drivers of motor buses not operating on a fixed schedule to keep and carry on his vehicle the daily time record. Exempting from the law motor bus and/or motor truck drivers operating wholly within a radius of 40 miles from the place at which they went on duty.

The amendments became effective July 1. The revision of the Industrial Commissioner's Administrative Regulations under the law was occasioned by these amendments. The revised regulations are as follows:

The law regulating the hours of labor of operators of motor buses and motor trucks in its application includes the owner, lessee and bailee of a motor truck or motor bus who operates said vehicle himself.

The Industrial Commissioner, as required by Section 167 of the Labor Law, has prescribed a form of daily time record to be carried on vehicles, and sample copies of such form may be obtained by addressing the Industrial Commissioner at State Office Buildings, Albany or New York city. It is the responsibility of the owner to supply these forms for the use of his drivers.

Owners of motor trucks or motor buses may continue the use of their own forms for their own purposes, provided that the daily time record form prescribed by the industrial commissioner is also kept, either separately or in combination with the private form.

A driver of a motor truck or motor bus not operated on fixed schedule shall fill out the daily time record form, up to and including the line "Duty on duty," immediately upon "going on duty" (as the term is described in Rules 6 and 7). The employer or his responsible agent shall indicate his knowledge that this has been done, either by inscribing his initials on the margin of the form or in some other manner which shall actually indicate the employer's knowledge of such entry. The same procedure shall be followed by the employer, or his responsible agent, when the driver "goes off duty" (as the term is described in Rule 8) and has made his final entry on the form.

The daily time record form prescribed by the industrial commissioner shall be kept and be available for inspection by the industrial commissioner, his representatives, the state police, or any peace officer for a period of 60 days within the state of New York in an office designated by the owner.

The term "duty" and the ten-hour limitation of work provided in the law for drivers of motor trucks and motor buses includes all work performed by the driver of a motor bus or motor truck in addition to actual driving.

A driver "goes on duty" when he begins work of any kind at a given time and place.

The term "goes off duty" means free from and off the bus or truck, and free from work of any kind, at such places and under such circumstances that rest and relaxation from the strain of the duties of employment may be obtained.

When a driver has been on duty continuously for 10 hours or at separate intervals for 10 hours or less in any 14 consecutive hours, including time for meals, he shall not continue or again go on duty without having had at least eight consecutive hours off duty.

If a driver is on duty at separate intervals for 10 hours or less within 14 consecutive hours, the daily time record form required to be kept by him shall plainly show the rest periods under the heading "Released from duty during day." No release from duty of less than one hour shall be deemed to break continuity of service.

"Delays caused by accident, act of God or other unforeseen cause" are declared to mean occurrences which could not be foreseen or guarded against, but routine performance of services incidental to the employment are excluded.

The word "adjacent" as used in this law shall be deemed to mean within a radius of 40 miles from the limits of the city, village or town in which the driver "goes on duty". Therefore the daily time record form is not required to be kept on days when a bus or truck is operated wholly within said 40 mile radius.

The driver of a motor truck or motor bus which enters and leaves New York state more than once in a day, need record on the daily time record form only the first and last crossings of the state line.

Every enforcement officer shall note on each daily time record form by him the hour, date and place of such inspection, and shall identify the same by his signature and title.

Every owner of a motor truck or motor bus shall display prominently a copy of these regulations in each garage, warehouse or terminal used by him within the state.

Abell took his advice—so literally he dislocated his shoulder.

Subway Game
Philadelphia—A new obstacle—terrier trouble—disrupted traffic on the Broad street subway.

Hopping up and down the tracks at the height of the rush hour, a perky wire-haired terrier pup held up trains for 17 minutes while subway employees sought vainly to catch him.

The dog disappeared from the tunnel as mysteriously as he had entered.

Japanese Troops Start Big Push

said the Japanese had been forced to abandon their advance field headquarters southwest of here, leaving a number of tanks and all field equipment.

Irregulars Harassed Japanese.
The Japanese troops based on Peiping were further harassed by bands of Chinese irregulars, operating in the hills to the north-west.

Large detachments of Japanese were engaged in battle by these irregulars, thus being kept from use against the regular troops rushed north by the Nanking government.

Japanese bombing planes, believed to be based at Miyun, 50 miles northeast of Peiping, were blasting at the Chinese advance. A squadron of 18 made flight after flight to the front lines today, flying in formation of three. Five others concentrated on the area west of Marco Polo bridge. Heavy and almost uninterrupted artillery duels were being fought on all points.

The Japanese army was preparing for a defense up to the walls of Peiping if the Chinese should push forward. Japanese officers were directing Chinese peasants in cutting down the luxuriant corn crops all the way from Peiping to Wauplingshen, clearing the fields for action.

Major Battle Under Way
To the north, beyond Nankow Pass which the Chinese were valiantly holding against heavily mechanized Japanese troops, a major battle was believed to be in progress.

Japanese troops from Manchoukuo were reported driving southward from Doloron. A Japanese communiqué said the fall of Kalgan, capital of Chahar Province, was imminent.

The renegade mongol chieftain, Prince Teh, was reported to have thrown his troops into the battle on the Japanese side, and they were said to be engaged at Changpeh, 60 miles north of Kalgan.

Foreign military observers estimated that between six and eight Chinese divisions were opposing these combined Japanese and Mongol forces north of the Great Wall and defending Kalgan.

The battle at Nankow Pass, where the Japanese have been balking for almost three weeks, was reported to have spread to the east and the west. Japanese artillery was shelling the hills behind the ancient summer palace northwest of Peiping.

There was no traffic along the roads to Nankow beyond a point 10 miles north of the city. This was not hampering the Japanese movement in that sector, however, a large base already had been established at Nankow City, fed by the Peiping-Suiyuan railroad.

By JAMES A. MILLS
Shanghai, Aug. 24 (AP)—Japanese planes, naval guns and landing parties smashed at Shanghai today in a promised "big offensive" against stubborn Chinese resistance.

I saw two Japanese airplane carriers anchored near Saddle Islands at the mouth of the Yangtze catapult plane after plane into the air to bomb Chinese machine gun positions near the Woosung shore.

In the midst of exploding bombs and artillery shells 212 Americans were evacuated aboard the liner President Pierce for Manila.

The battle raged down the Whangpoo and along the Yangtze. Japanese landed thousands of reinforcements. They were led by suicide detachments of the "white band of death."

Japanese Advance
The Japanese were driving in from the north to assault the Chinese left flank. Japanese army spokesmen declared reinforcements they landed in the Woosung area yesterday and today already had advanced at different points from one to two miles.

General Iwane Matsu, former commanding general on the island of Formosa, came out of retirement to take command of all Japanese forces in the Shanghai area.

A member of the Chinese staff declared: "Our forces will meet the Chinese troops, regardless of the time and place."

I sailed down the Whangpoo with the American refugees who boarded the President Pierce. For the first time United States officials decided the refugees should be conveyed with a warship.

Against the clear sky, Japanese sea and land planes emblazoned with the rising sun insignia dropping bombs and swooping down to blast machinegun bullets into the Chinese lines.

After the party of refugees was transferred to the President Pierce, the destroyer uncovered her guns and escorted the liner through the raging battle to the sea.

Coming back, I saw four huge shell holes in buildings of the University of Shanghai on the Whangpoo river. The institution is run by American Baptists.

Chinese Withdraw
The battle area immediately about International Shanghai was vastly different from yesterday. Because of the Japanese flanking movement, Chinese forces in the Yangtze and Ward Road Jail areas withdrew to new positions north of the International Settlement boundary.

The districts of Hongkew and Yangtze, which 24 hours before had been the center of machine gun and shell fire, were as quiet as a grave.

Flanked by their warships, the Japanese transports crept up to the Woosung wharves in the pitch darkness just before dawn. The Chinese positions were ominously silent until the first launch was lowered. Then, as though at a signal, the still blackness became a living inferno of flames and noise.

750 KILLED AND INJURED BY SHELL IN SHANGHAI

More than 750 persons were killed and wounded, including three Americans, as a heavy artillery shell crashed into a noon-day shopping crowd thronging Nanking road, Shanghai's busiest thoroughfare in the heart of the International Settlement. It was feared the death toll would reach 400. This picture, made in August, 1935, when typhoon refugees crowded the streets, shows the department store center where the shell struck. At extreme right is the entrance of the Wing On store, the front of which literally was blown away. The Sincere and Company store, where many also were killed, is just across the street from the Wing On store, but is not shown.

White Band of Death
The small improvised armored launch bore 70 picked and self-named "Shirodasukital," literally the "white band of death." The only color they wore was a white sash around their back and shoulders—the traditional guard of Japan's proud Samurai who enter combat prepared to die.

As the little boat with its suicide band touched the water, the almost solid wall of Chinese machineguns and artillery blazed at pointblank range and the Japanese warships replied with broadsides.

Japanese war planes hovering in the darkness overhead swooped suddenly to within 500 feet of the Chinese lines, blasting with machine guns and bombs.

As the bottom of the launch scraped the Yangtze mudflats, the hand of death leaped into the waist-deep water and waded ashore in the face of withering fire from machine guns and hand grenades.

While they scrambled up the low river bank a Chinese land mine was touched off and the "white band of death" was enveloped in a lurid sheet of flame. The few survivors closed in hand to hand combat with the Chinese.

The fighting raged along the banks of the Yangtze river from Woosung to Linho to the west and down to the Whangpoo river 12 miles to Shanghai's International Settlement.

Flames were sweeping vast areas of Shanghai and the Woosung vicinity where the Whangpoo meets the Yangtze to form a great estuary of the China Sea.

Chinese Burn Pootung
Great flames, began sweeping Pootung, just across the Whangpoo from Shanghai's Bund before dawn. Seemingly, the Chinese were seeking to burn the great industrial section to the very waterfront rather than permit millions of dollars in property and supplies to fall into Japanese hands.

Woosung itself was wrecked by guns from the some 100 Japanese warships covering the landing of the reinforcements for the hard-pressed Japanese in the northern and eastern sectors of the international settlement.

The list of dead and wounded noncombatants from yesterday's tragic shelling of the heart of the international settlement was mounting steadily. It seemed as though the number of dead from the one shell that wrecked the two great department stores of the Sincere Company and the Wing On Company would easily pass 400. More than 1,000 were wounded when the blast shook the intersection of Nanking, Cheekiang and Hoppeh roads.

The "Five Corners" is the busiest spot in the orient and probably no where else in the world, outside of London or New York, would more people ever be found together. Both Chinese and Japanese officials accused the other of responsibility.

Conservative estimates of innocent dead in the 12 days of battle for Shanghai were set at 10,000 with the wounded so numerous as to be countless.

Wounded in Shanghai

Anthony Billingham (top), staff correspondent for the New York Times, and Hallett Abend (below), chief of staff for the Times in China, were wounded by the shell which struck Nanking road in the International Settlement, bringing death and injuries to 750. Billingham was the most seriously injured.

world, "In the Pacific area as elsewhere." This includes "adjustment of problems in international relations by processes of peaceful negotiations."

The Japanese government, one of 50 nations which replied formally to that statement, said it felt the principles could be attained in the Far East only by a "full recognition and practical consideration of the actual particular circumstances of that region."

Hull said the dispatch of 1-200 marines from San Diego to Shanghai was on "no mission of aggression," but to afford Americans "appropriate protection, primarily against mobs or other uncontrolled elements."

Hay Fever Victims Open New Season

"Ker-cho-o, ker-cho-o"

That is the high hailing sign of distress of Kingston Chapter of Hayfever Sufferers of the World. Just how many members belong to Kingston Chapter is not known, as it was revealed at the Board of Health office today that it is not necessary to report the affliction to the board for its records.

The season is now in full breath in the city, and it will be recalled that several years ago the health board recommended that property owners assist in stamping out the prevalence of the disease in the city by cutting down the ragweed, sumach and other weeds in vacant lots in the city.

Since then it has been learned by health authorities that while keeping the weeds cut in the city aids materially in reducing the number of sufferers it is impossible to stamp out the affliction entirely unless the campaign was carried to all sections of the state.

Dr. C. Sanford, city health officer, said this morning that even with the cutting down of ragweed and sumach in Kingston while it would aid it would not entirely blot out hay fever as long as Kingston residents went out for rides and walks outside the city limits where the ragweed and sumach grew in profusion.

The disease is spread by the pollen from the weeds blowing around in the air which is breathed by those who are susceptible to the affliction.

It will aid sufferers, however, if ragweed and sumach when found growing within the city limits is cut down and kept cut by residents.

LABOR FEDERATION OPENS STATE CONVENTION

Jamestown, N. Y., Aug. 24 (AP)—New York's labor federation with an anti-C.I.O. banner already raised, turned to its 74th annual state convention here today.

Governor Herbert H. Lehman was on hand to give the first session's main address, although shaken up last night when another machine sideswiped his automobile in New York city.

With him on the program were State Supreme Court Justice Charles Poletti, Assistant United States Attorney General Robert H. Jackson, and State Attorney General John J. Bennett.

A torchlight parade of nearly 2,000 convention delegates and members of 30 union locals through Jamestown streets wound up pre-convention activities last night.

It was the first parade ever staged at a federation convention. Cerberus was the many-headed dog of Greek mythology which guarded the portal of infernal regions.

NO CROWDED NATIONS

Dr. Hans Sinions, a former government official who left Germany when Hitler rose to supremacy, in a recent address debunked the German and Italian plans that their nationals are overcrowded on the home soils. These governments that say they cannot find room for their people, he said, are always urging them to propagate and breed more cannon fodder. Not more than 20,000 Germans went to German colonies before the war and Italy has spent money extravagantly to settle a very few colonists in her African colonies.

And finally, said Dr. Sinions, "if equal amounts were spent on the people inside the country that are spent in trying to acquire and populate colonies, the problems of unemployment probably could be settled." A good many Americans have been suspecting something of this kind for a long time.

the dark ships

BY HULBERT FOOTNER

SYNOPSIS: Neil, a young federal agent, comes to Baltimore to spend a week with Janet. She won't break a dinner date with Prescott Fanning. So they quarrel and part. Neil, distrustful of Fanning, decides to check on him. He gets acquainted with him at the hotel bar. Fanning gives him a knock-out drop, searches his papers and keeps a snapshot of Janet. Next day Neil awakens to find Janet, Fanning and Fanning's yacht gone. A mysterious phone call tells him Janet is aboard the yacht in Abolition's Harbor and in trouble. Neil hurries to Abolition's by bus.

Chapter Eight

Murder On The Nadji

RETURNING to the porch of the sprawling store, Neil sat down at the end of the line of men taking their ease and enjoying their after-supper pipes. Sun-burned fishermen mostly, in gumboots and faded drill shirts. Neil learned that fishing was good and that pound nets were being set out in the bay. The trout had come earlier than was customary.

None of this was to his purpose, and he studied the yacht. Very smart and modern with her high sides and a stubby funnel. Something under a hundred feet over all. She carried two boats on davits amidships, and he noted that one of them was gone. As darkness gathered it seemed odd to him that no lights showed in the cabins. The riding lights were up.

The man next to Neil was a tall fisherman with white hair and a complexion the color of beet juice. That's a tidy little yacht, yonder, Neil remarked to him.

"So you might say she's the latest caper all right. But ugly as hell, if you're asking me."

"Is she owned hereabouts?"

"Nah! We got no boys like that down here. We're working people, New York men." He told Neil of the accident to the yacht's engine.

"Is the owner aboard?"

"Sure, he's aboard."

"I see their dinghy is ashore."

"The crew just come in to go to the movies."

Neil grinned in hard satisfaction. Owner aboard; crew ashore. The situation was working out to his advantage.

Neil heard a man hearing them talking about the yacht, took up the tale. "The owner was in the store telephoning while ago. Fine looking, big slicker, fresh-complected. But sorry. Didn't have a word to throw to a dog."

Neil took heart from this. If things were going badly with Fanning, so much the better.

"Quite right, he's a surly brute," said another. "This was a lanky fellow with an innocent blue eye. Neil noticed that the others were inclined to make a butt of him.

"I rowed out there with a mess of trout, thinking they'd be glad to buy some fresh fish," he said.

"But when I came alongside the owner, he ordered me off. 'Get the boat away from here,' he says. 'I don't want any damned fish!'"

"That was manners," said another. "What did you say, Jake?"

"I says, 'Go to hell yourself, you long-legged so-and-so! I'm as good a man as you, if you do own a yacht. And if you'll come ashore, I'll prove it!'"

There was a general laugh.

"All right, the speaker went on. 'I told you before and I tell you again there is some funny business aboard that yacht, and we ought to investigate it!'"

More laughter.

'As If She Wanted Help'

"WHAT do you mean, funny business?" asked Neil.

"I'll tell you, stranger. When I came alongside the yacht I was standing up in my skiff and I could look right into one of the portholes. All closed they were, warm as it is. And on the other side of the glass I seen a beautiful young girl with bare arms and neck. Only seen her a second, but she nodded her head and beckoned pitiful as if she wanted help real bad."

Neil's heart was suddenly lightened. Janet was aboard the yacht, then; he had come to the right place. And she was not a willing passenger, either. That relieved his worst fear. He felt a gush of friendliness towards the speaker.

But he, it seemed, enjoyed no reputation for veracity among his mates. They laughed him down.

"You're seeing things, Jake. You're wasted fishing. You ought to be one of these here, now, storywriters in the papers."

"All right! All right!" said Jake. "Some day you men will learn that I'm not as big a fool as you like to make out!"

When it became really dark and the vessels in the harbor were no longer sharply silhouetted against the water, Neil got up and strolled away. Each house along the harbor front had its little pier sticking out from the shore with one or more small boats moored to it, and he had it in mind to borrow one of these without asking.

Man About Manhattan

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Much of the New York that O. Henry knew has passed under the wheels of the wrecking crew, yet the town still continues to be a grab-bag of tag lines and incredible ironies. The theatrical boarding houses, the brownstone fronts, the carriages and the gas lights—these are in limbo with the cigar store Indian and the bicycle for two. Yet O. Henry would crack his heels over the inexplicable situations and the picturesque characters which are walking the street, waiting for some author to toss them into print.

Take Pat O'Malley, for instance, and the contest she arranged for the American Airlines and the Butterick Patterns people. . . . She is a girl and one of the best publicists in town. . . . She handles the publicity for the American Airlines, and the idea was a nationwide contest to discover the best dressed woman in America who made her own clothes.

SO THEY held the contest, and it was a great success, and they found just the girl they were after. . . . But even an O. Henry, with the license of fiction, would have had a hard time thinking up a better tag-line. The girl who won the American Airlines contest—was a hostess on a rival airline.

If you think this is an isolated case, consider the hatcheck girl in Maillard's restaurant on Madison Avenue. . . . She is a registered surgeon. . . . Half the doorman under those bright Fifth Avenue awnings are grand dukes and barons. . . . A "poor" hootch near the Battery died recently and left an estate of half a million dollars. A panhandler brought into night court by an unsympathetic cop turned out to be a holder of vast real estate properties in New Jersey. . . . So it goes and such is the pattern of this glad, sad, bad island, where everyone, for awhile, is close to everyone else, because, before you know it, the guy next to you might turn out to be your long lost grandmother.

REMOVING AN OBSESSION

There are various definitions of obsessions, but, in a general way, an obsession might be described as feeling that you must do a certain thing which when you earn profits like other capital. (think calmly about it, is a foolish, unnecessary or senseless thing to do.)

For instance, as a youngster you may have had the feeling that you must touch each picket in a fence, step only on wood or stone, go to school, or other equally foolish or senseless act. Something inside you seemed to drive you or compel you to do this thing which even as a youngster you knew was "senseless." As you grew older you just did not obey impulse; you recognized how senseless it was.

It is this senseless impulse developed in childhood persisting in another form perhaps into adult life that is called an obsession.

Unfortunately these obsessions take on forms that make the individual do things for which he is terribly ashamed because he knows, his calm mind tells him, that these acts are harmful to him. On the other hand, these obsessions sometimes take on the form where the individual shows excessive cleanliness, orderliness, conscientiousness.

There are other cases where there is self-torment, excessive kindness one day and cruelty the next, fear and bravery and other contrasting conditions present.

That many of these tendencies are hereditary and others developed at an early age is the belief of some psychiatrists or mental specialists. It is from this standpoint—remembering that there is the hereditary or early beginning of the trouble—pointing out to the individual when he is calm and composed, the senseless of his acts, together with having him use his will power to overcome the impulse, that brings about a cure in many cases.

You can see that this treatment may require a long time: investigating the history of the patient's parents and relatives, his early life and associates (at home and at school), any circumstances that may have upset his nervous balance, then bringing all these circumstances out into the light and discussing them frankly and freely, correcting any physical defect (infected teeth or tonsils) that may be sapping his nervous strength or energy.

It is a long process, sometimes requiring care in an institution, but the chances of recovery are very good.

One of the best fiction writers in America turned out to be his first cousin, whom he hadn't seen since he was a kid. . . . A reigning opera star sauntered into a late hour spaghetti joint, and the waiter was discovered to be his half-brother. These incidents are no different from the thousand and one odd matters of chance that turn up every day. It's just one of the infinitesimal things that help make New York what it is.

LAW AND ORDER.

Vigilante organizations (usually referred to euphonically as law and order groups) have won considerable approval in various localities lately. But Americans in general are inclined to think too high a price may be paid for law and order of this kind.

This conclusion is implied in the result of a recent national poll on the subject. More than three-fourths of the citizens questioned, representing all sorts of Americans, declared against that kind of government. It may have been necessary and justifiable in early days, on the frontier, they seemed to say, but is always regrettable, and should never be resorted to except as a last resort, to prevent utter lawlessness.

This is the verdict as regards violence on the part of labor, or employers, or any other groups inclined to seize police functions arbitrarily even though the usurpers believe they are using their power for public benefit.

GASOLINE FIRES

Something worth knowing by everybody, in this age of fire perils from petroleum products, was demonstrated the other day at Saginaw, Mich., at a meeting of state fire chiefs. In a big pit in the ground two fires were started, one of oil and the other of gasoline. More than 1,000 gallons of these dangerous combustibles were blazing fiercely, throwing flames 100 feet high. The firemen turned upon them "vapor fog nozzles," throwing fine sprays of water instead of the usual solid column or heavy shower. The spray soon formed a blanket of water vapor which smothered the flames.

The obvious lesson for anyone in, in case of any such fire in home, office or factory, to throw a line a water spray as possible with whatever hose is available. It is not volume of water but deprivation of air that stops the flames.

NO CROWDED NATIONS

Dr. Hans Sinions, a former government official who left Germany when Hitler rose to supremacy, in a recent address debunked the German and Italian plans that their nationals are overcrowded on the home soils. These governments that say they cannot find room for their people, he said, are always urging them to propagate and breed more cannon fodder. Not more than 20,000 Germans went to German colonies before the war and Italy has spent money extravagantly to settle a very few colonists in her African colonies.

And finally, said Dr. Sinions, "if equal amounts were spent on the people inside the country that are spent in trying to acquire and populate colonies, the problems of unemployment probably could be settled." A good many Americans have been suspecting something of this kind for a long time.

NO CROWDED NATIONS

Dr. Hans Sinions, a former government official who left Germany when Hitler rose to supremacy, in a recent address debunked the German and Italian plans that their nationals are overcrowded on the home soils. These governments that say they cannot find room for their people, he said, are always urging them to propagate and breed more cannon fodder. Not more than 20,000 Germans went to German colonies before the war and Italy has spent money extravagantly to settle a very few colonists in her African colonies.

And finally, said Dr. Sinions, "if equal amounts were spent on the people inside the country that are spent in trying to acquire and populate colonies, the problems of unemployment probably could be settled." A good many Americans have been suspecting something of this kind for a long time.

SYNOPSIS: Neil, a young federal agent, comes to Baltimore to spend a week with Janet. She won't break a dinner date with Prescott Fanning. So they quarrel and part. Neil, distrustful of Fanning, decides to check on him. He gets acquainted with him at the hotel bar. Fanning gives him a knock-out drop, searches his papers and keeps a snapshot of Janet. Next day Neil awakens to find Janet, Fanning and Fanning's yacht gone. A mysterious phone call tells him Janet is aboard the yacht in Abolition's Harbor and in trouble. Neil hurries to Abolition's by bus.

Chapter Eight

Murder On The Nadji

RETURNING to the porch of the sprawling store, Neil sat down at the end of the line of men taking their ease and enjoying their after-supper pipes. Sun-burned fishermen mostly, in gumboots and faded drill shirts. Neil learned that fishing was good and that pound nets were being set out in the bay. The trout had come earlier than was customary.

None of this was to his purpose, and he studied the yacht. Very smart and modern with her high sides and a stubby funnel. Something under a hundred feet over all. She carried two boats on davits amidships, and he noted that one of them was gone. As darkness gathered it seemed odd to him that no lights showed in the cabins. The riding lights were up.

The man next to Neil was a tall fisherman with white hair and a complexion the color of beet juice. That's a tidy little yacht, yonder, Neil remarked to him.

"So you might say she's the latest caper all right. But ugly as hell, if you're asking me."

"Is she owned hereabouts?"

"Nah! We got no boys like that down here. We're working people, New York men." He told Neil of the accident to the yacht's engine.

"Is the owner aboard?"

"Sure, he's aboard."

"I see their dinghy is ashore."

"The crew just come in to go to the movies."

Neil grinned in hard satisfaction. Owner aboard; crew ashore. The situation was working out to his advantage.

Neil heard a man hearing them talking about the yacht, took up the tale. "The owner was in the store telephoning while ago. Fine looking, big slicker, fresh-complected. But sorry. Didn't have a word to throw to a dog."

Neil took heart from this. If things were going badly with Fanning, so much the better.

"Quite right, he's a surly brute," said another. "This was a lanky fellow with an innocent blue eye. Neil noticed that the others were inclined to make a butt of him.

"I rowed out there with a mess of trout, thinking they'd be glad to buy some fresh fish," he said.

"But when I came alongside the owner, he ordered me off. 'Get the boat away from here,' he says. 'I don't want any damned fish!'"

"That was manners," said another. "What did you say, Jake?"

"I says, 'Go to hell yourself, you long-legged so-and-so! I'm as good a man as you, if you do own a yacht. And if you'll come ashore, I'll prove it!'"

There was a general laugh.

"All right, the speaker went on. 'I told you before and I tell you again there is some funny business aboard that yacht, and we ought to investigate it!'"

More laughter.

'As If She Wanted Help'

"WHAT do you mean, funny business?" asked Neil.

"I'll tell you, stranger. When I came alongside the yacht I was standing up in my skiff and I could look right into one of the portholes. All closed they were, warm as it is. And on the other side of the glass I seen a beautiful young girl with bare arms and neck. Only seen her a second, but she nodded her head and beckoned pitiful as if she wanted help real bad."

Neil's heart was suddenly lightened. Janet was aboard the yacht, then; he had come to the right place. And she was not a willing passenger, either. That relieved his worst fear. He felt a gush of friendliness towards the speaker.

But he, it seemed, enjoyed no reputation for veracity among his mates. They laughed him down.

"You're seeing things, Jake. You're wasted fishing. You ought to be one of these here, now, storywriters in the papers."

"All right! All right!" said Jake. "Some day you men will learn that I'm not as big a fool as you like to make out!"

When it became really dark and the vessels in the harbor were no longer sharply silhouetted against the water, Neil got up and strolled away. Each house along the harbor front had its little pier sticking out from the shore with one or more small boats moored to it, and he had it in mind to borrow one of these without asking.

He turned to the right because in

Man About Manhattan

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Much of the New York that O. Henry knew has passed under the wheels of the wrecking crew, yet the town still continues to be a grab-bag of tag lines and incredible ironies. The theatrical boarding houses, the brownstone fronts, the carriages and the gas lights—these are in limbo with the cigar store Indian and the bicycle for two. Yet O. Henry would crack his heels over the inexplicable situations and the picturesque characters which are walking the street, waiting for some author to toss them into print.

Take Pat O'Malley, for instance, and the contest she arranged for the American Airlines and the Butterick Patterns people. . . . She is a girl and one of the best publicists in town. . . . She handles the publicity for the American Airlines, and the idea was a nationwide contest to discover the best dressed woman in America who made her own clothes.

SO THEY held the contest, and it was a great success, and they found just the girl they were after. . . . But even an O. Henry, with the license of fiction, would have had a hard time thinking up a better tag-line. The girl who won the American Airlines contest—was a hostess on a rival airline.

If you think this is an isolated case, consider the hatcheck girl in Maillard's restaurant on Madison Avenue. . . . She is a registered surgeon. . . . Half the doorman under those bright Fifth Avenue awnings are grand dukes and barons. . . . A "poor" hootch near the Battery died recently and left an estate of half a million dollars. A panhandler brought into night court by an unsympathetic cop turned out to be a holder of vast real estate properties in New Jersey. . . . So it goes and such is the pattern of this glad, sad, bad island, where everyone, for awhile, is close to everyone else, because, before you know it, the guy next to you might turn out to be your long lost grandmother.

Two Held After Brickyard Fight

John Smothers, 27, negro, East Kingston brickyard worker, again found himself in the Ulster county jail last night, having been arrested by Deputies McCullough and Pierce following a fight in one of the camps of negro workers at the Goldrick brickyard. Johnny had a bad gash in his forehead which he claimed had been inflicted with a piece of iron, but which others say was sustained when he fell and struck his head against part of an iron cot.

Smothers and Andrew Kirby, principals in the affair, were both arraigned before Justice John Watzka. Kirby put up $50 bail for a hearing at 7 o'clock tonight. Johnny didn't have the $50 and was brought to the jail. The charge is assault in the third degree.

Fined $10 on Assault Charge

Taffy Thomas, East Kingston negro, arrested Sunday on charge of assault, was arraigned Monday night before Justice John Watzka. The Justice fined him $10, which was paid.

Lewis Third Party Getting Scanning

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 24 (AP)—Recent talk of a John L. Lewis labor party for the 1940 campaign led American Federation of Labor leaders today to extend their anti-Lewis battle to the political field.

The federation's executive council ordered President William Green to find out whether Lewis had converted labor's non-partisan league into the C. I. O. political agency, as reports from Washington said he intended to do.

In a talk with newspaper men, Green plainly indicated he felt Lewis had done just that. He further indicated that if his inquiry bore out his belief, the federation would ask all loyal members to get out of the league.

Green said he was "inclined to believe" the stories that Lewis, Sidney Hillman and other C. I. O. leaders intended to place a labor candidate in the 1940 presidential race. He recalled that for months he had said that C. I. O. leaders had political ambitions.

Daniel J. Tobin, outspoken Irish president of the Truck Drivers' Union and chairman of the Democratic National Committee's labor division, on the other hand scoffed at the third party talk.

John Lewis, he said, "has too much sense not to know what has happened to all third parties in our country for the past 40 years," and "will not make the mistake of starting" one.

PLATTEKILL MAN CHARGED WITH ABUSE OF A MINOR

George A. Decker, 65, of Plattekill, was arrested Monday by Sergeant Hulse and Trooper Baker, on a charge of carnal abuse of a minor. He was arraigned before Justice William B. Carr, who held him for appearance before the grand jury and he was committed to the Ulster county jail.

According to the record when booked Decker has a felony conviction against him.

FARM POPULATION IS BEING REDUCED

Decrease Is Shown for First Time Since 1929.

Washington.—The nation's farm population has decreased for the first time since 1929, the bureau of agricultural economics reported.

There are now 31,729,000 persons on farms, as against 31,809,000 a year ago, the bureau estimated.

During the last year 1,166,000 persons left farms, while 719,000 moved to farms from villages, towns and cities. Thus gross migration totaled 447,000.

Net migration was 80,000, due to the fact that farm births far exceeded deaths—716,000 to 348,000, the bureau explained.

During the years 1930-35 farm population increased every year. Since 1910 there have been several periods when the farm population showed decreases, particularly during the World War.

The present farm population is a little less than the peak figure of 32,076,900 reported for 1910, but nearly 2,000,000 greater than the 30,169,000 reported for 1930. In this connection, the bureau noted:

"The result of all the changes of the last twenty-seven years is that the farm population today is about one per cent less than in 1910.

"Although the number of persons in the United States has increased by nearly 40 per cent since 1910, the number of persons living on farms today is slightly less than it was in that year. Since 1920, however, more people have moved from farms than to farms during every year except 1932."

The increase in farm population between 1930 and 1935 was due more to the fact that fewer people were moving to towns and cities than to any great "back-to-the-land movement," according to the bureau.

With the resumption of urban employment opportunities in recent years, there has been an increase in net migration from farms.

Funeral for Old Flags Held Over Pyre in Ohio

Urbana, Ohio.—In an impressive ritual, 60 American flags "worn out in service" were destroyed here by members of the H. M. Pearce post, American Legion.

Neither the army, navy, nor the American Legion heretofore has used a ceremony on such occasions.

Lieut. Col. William Vance, army reserve corps, who drafted the one here, said:

The ritual prescribes an outdoor service with officers and members assigned to stations around an open fire. The ceremony opens with the sergeant-at-arms presenting to the commander all flags to be destroyed with these words:

"I wish to present a number of flags of our country for inspection and disposition."

After their condition has been noted the commander declares:

"They have reached their present state through a service of tribute and memory and love."

"A flag may be a flimsy bit of printed gauze, or a beautiful banner of finest silk. Its intrinsic value may be trifling or great. Its real value is beyond price, for it is a symbol of all that we and our comrades have worked for, and died for—a free nation of free men, true to the faith of the past, devoted to the ideals and practices of liberty, freedom and justice."

The flags are then ordered dipped in kerosene and placed on a rack over a fire. As this is being done the bugler sounds "To the Colors," and the entire company stands at attention. The chaplain says a prayer.

Children Bad in Good Weather and Vice Versa

Milwaukee.—A study of probation officers revealed that when the weather is bad children are good. John J. Kenney, chief probation officer of the juvenile court, said that juvenile delinquency increased 25 per cent in the first five months of 1937 over the same period of 1936.

In 1936, Kenney said, snowdrifts and zero weather kept children indoors, but in 1937 the winter was so mild that the youths were outdoors much of the time and more of them got into trouble.

Kenney said there always is an inverse relationship between the weather and child delinquency.

"Hi-Jacks" Cows of Milk

Nashville, Tenn.—A forty-two-year-old negro taught the world a new racket when he took a bucket and began "hi-jacking" cows at the Union stockyards.

Owner Gives Up Car to Pay $10 Tow Bill

Marshfield, Ore.—Albert Prass of Marshfield went to town for aid after his car stalled on the Oregon Coast highway near a railroad overhead crossing.

In his absence, a policeman called a wrecker. When Pratt returned, he found his car missing.

Pratt and the wrecker met at a nearby town. The wrecker presented Pratt with a $10 towing bill. Pratt turned the 1925 auto over to the wrecker and marked it up as a total loss.

Governor in Collision

New York, Aug. 24 (AP).—Governor Herbert H. Lehman was recovering today from a shaking up received in an automobile collision. The governor was riding from Purchase, N. Y., to his Park avenue home here when his car was sideswiped by a machine driven by Herman Gamb in the Bronx last night.

12 KILLED. 40 HURT IN MOUNTAIN FOREST FIRE

Swept along by a gale, a mountain forest fire near Cody, Wyo., took the lives of 12 fire fighters and injured two score others, 25 seriously. Most of the dead were CCC members who were trapped while battling the blaze in Shoshone National Forest. This picture shows the fire at its height.

SLAIN FOR "JEALOUSY"

Washington police say a 70-year-old negro janitor, Major McAffee, had confessed that while under the influence of liquor he had beaten to death Mrs. Henrietta Anderson, 39, shown above with her two-year-old son, William. Another son, Linwood, Jr., also survives. McAffee said he killed the woman with a furnace shaker "because he was jealous of her."

Greatest AMOCO-GAS

The history of America is a story of courage... of an unconquerable spirit that turned a colonial wilderness into the most productive country in the world.

It's a big jump from the small towns of colonial days to the great cities of the present! And it's a big jump from the transportation of the eighteenth century to that of 1937. The story of the automobile and of the development of better motor fuels is an interesting chapter in American history. American Oil Company is proud of the major part it has played in this story!

American Oil Company revolutionized the automotive industry—made possible today's high compression motor—by introducing Amoco-Gas, the first and original special motor fuel.

Amoco-Gas, for years, has held more world's records than any other motor fuel! Time after time it has been proved the world's best.

But recently new scientific developments made this world's finest motor fuel even better. New processes were invented and patented... new equipment perfected... the greatest and most modern refining unit in the world was made even more modern.

The result is that the new Amoco-Gas is the greatest in our history! It gives even better performance, smoother operation than last year's superb Amoco-Gas! Always the best—now better than ever!

Rural Reasoning:
The kind of men this country needs aren't bound by races, parties, creeds; Nor blinded by dazzle nor awed by might; But square their shoulders and do what's right.

Divorce Judge:—How long have your relations been unpleasant? Woman—Your honor, my relations have always been pleasant. It is his relations that are the old grouches.

All of us are more effective if we are moved by the spirit of useful service.

Business Man:—What do you do with all these pictures you paint? Artist—Well, I sell them. Business Man—Well, name your salary and report to work Monday. I have been looking for a salesman like you for years.

The New Suit:
I wish to ask, have you appeared in this same suit before? The witness turned, in pleased surprise to look the lawyer over.

"I think not, sir," was her reply. "This is a brand new gown. The one I wore, when here before was red instead of brown."

You seem to be a bit surprised when told the dress is new. Its perfect fit should make a bit with folks as wise as you."

—Harry Brockway.
Gerald—I understand you have been having your family tree looked up?

Harold—Yes, and it cost me $1,200.
Gerald—Expensive, wasn't it? Harold—Yes, but it cost only $200 to have it looked up. The rest was what I paid to have it hushed up.

Indignation is one of the principal sources of energy.

Professor—Now, if I were to be flogged, what would that be? Class (in unison)—That would be corporal punishment.

Professor—But if I were to be beheaded?
Class (in unison)—Oh, that would be capital!

And the fellow who has the courage to call a spade a spade, quite often hasn't got the energy to take one up and dig.

Professor—What is the most potent poison?
Student—An aeroplane; one drop and you're dead!

Entirely too many people disagree of all their problems by saying: "I'll take care of it next week."

Bumptious Young Man:—Yes, I'm a thought reader. I can tell exactly what a person is thinking.

Elderly Man:—In that case, I beg your pardon.

Things that are easy to do are seldom worth the effort.

Mother:—What are the young man's intentions, dear?
Daughter—He has been keeping me pretty much in the dark, Mother.

Read it or not—A drop of tincture of iodine purifies a glass of drinking water. It destroys typhoid or other harmful germs.

Carl:—Here comes the parade. Where's Auntie?
Mother—She's upstairs waving her hair.

Carl:—Goodness, can't we afford a flag?
A farmer's son, just home from college, seemed to take pride in using college slang, and at the breakfast table, called out:

Farmer's Son:—Mother, chase the cow down this way!
Mother was equal to the occasion, and said to her husband:

Somebody:—Give the poor calf some milk. Don't you hear him bawling for it?

Soft words do more than hard speeches.

Commissioned officers in the U. S. army were caputless until 1872 when they were replaced by shoulder knots in all uniforms except those of general officers.

He Plays Football:
Sixteen years ago, Hal, Jr.'s antics inspired his father with the idea for "Our Gang," which in a sense makes the son already an important contributor to pictures.

The boy has been away at military school (Culver in Indiana). He came home with six letters in athletics and a B-plus average in studies, ranking twentieth in a class of 150 graduates. Being a class of 150 graduates, being and football were his specialties.

He says he'd like to try out his football in college, but—

At The Theatres

Today

Broadway: "Lost Horizon." A mystic dramatic masterpiece has been made from James Hilton's "Lost Horizon" with Ronald Colman in the starring role and aided by a splendid cast plus some of the finest motion picture photography ever recorded. The plot leaves little to be desired in suspense and a haunting sense of beauty. A British consul is kidnapped from war ridden Baskul and the plane that takes him away is piloted by a strange and enigmatic man. The plane comes down in the highlands of Tibet and from then on the production rises to sweeping levels of mystery and excitement.

Directed by the talented Frank Capra, this Columbia Picture is one of the standouts of the year. The cast of thousands includes such big names as Edward Everett Horton, Margo, H. B. Warner, Jane Wyatt, Isabel Jewell and Sam Jaffe. Lavish settings and brilliant photography are among the reasons for the picture's universal appeal, that plus an unusual plot that is half melodrama, half mysticism. Here is top entertainment of the highest quality.

Kingslon: "The Girl from Scotland Yard" and "The Frame-Up." Wild with breezy action, suspense and mystery, the opener at the Kingslon tells the story of a girl spy and the dangers she faces in her calling. From an entertainment standpoint the show is well worth seeing but it has a flaw or two on the factual side. Those in the cast include Karen Morley, Katherine Alexander, Edward Cinnelli and Bob Baldwin.

"The Frame-Up" is an exciting story of strong arm methods and how a makes a man helpless to perform his rightful duty to society. Paul Kelly, George McKay and Jacqueline Wells head the cast.

Orpheum: "Midnight Court" and "Accused." A cross section of the criminal life of a big city and of a lawyer who turns to the opolines on his profession forms the plot basis of "Midnight Court" with Anna Dvorak, John Lill, Stanley Fields, Gordon Hart and Carlyle Moore.

"Accused" is the other feature of the program, a British made melodrama, with Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and Dolores Del Rio starred.

Tomorrow

Broadway: "New Faces of 1937." Songs, dances, gags, humor and a group of youngsters striving to make the motion picture heights all get together in this extravagant and entertaining musical comedy that also offers such recognized names as Joe Penner, Harriet Hilliard, Parkyakarkas and Milton Berle. There are several useful song hits in the film, the dance numbers are especially eye filling and the work of the unknown players in the cast is interesting to watch.

Kingslon: "The Big Shot" and "Armored Car." Two diversified features are shown at the Kingslon, the first a typical American comedy centering around big business, the second a thriller of the crooks versus cops school of melodrama. The first attraction stars Guy Kibbee and features Cora Witherspoon, the second finds Robert Wilcox in one of the most important roles.

Orpheum: "Waikiki Wedding" and "Juggernaut." Bing Crosby sings songs under a Hawaiian moon just about sums up this comical story of the pineapple industry and of a young man who tries to put romance into the business of selling pineapples. Bing Crosby is at his throaty best in this show and he is helped along in the comedy situations by the team of Bob Burns and Martha Raye. Shirley Grey is also in the cast. "Juggernaut" is the other feature, a horror tale with Boris Karloff.

New York, Aug. 23 (AP)—The inscrutable orient apparently is going to remain inscrutable as far as radio broadcasts of its current family fight are concerned.

With one of the biggest stories of the century staring them in the face, radio men are finding it virtually impossible to get verbal "front line" pictures of the Chinese-Japanese war for the air wave customers. Things have been lined up several times, but each time, in typical oriental style, something happened at the last minute.

PIE-FACED KIDS AT BARMANN PARK

SAUGERTIES NEWS

Just another panhandler on the highways of Yellowstone National Park. Clever beggars, these bears. This one scarcely waited for the Pontiac to come to a stop before he came lumbering out to the car. And a couple of smart old campaigners send out their cubs ahead to gain the sympathy of the motorist. What they like most is candy. And it's strange one never hears of a diabetic bear in the park. Park employees caution tourists not to let the bears eat from their hands. The bears aren't vicious but they are near-sighted. So they bite at what they smell and if a hand happens to be in the way, that's just too bad.

Oldsmobile retail sales during the other eight. Both have a first ten days of August this lower horsepower rating than the year were 67 per cent above the Studebaker engine, according to official information.

Regulations governing the use of this type engine in aircraft require the motor to run at full throttle for 150 consecutive hours and then put through a series of flights after installation in the airplane. Each separate test is under constant supervision by the Department of Air Commerce.

A belief that used car prices soon may start an upward swing in keeping with the general increase in prices of all commodities was expressed this week by J. B. Wagstaff, general sales manager of the Dodge Division of the Chrysler Corporation.

Business indices show that prices "all down the line" have risen almost 25 per cent since 1933. In the last six months, rents and clothing have led the parade in the upswing. It is only logical to assume that used car prices, which have remained stable during the last few years, will follow in the wake of constantly rising commodity prices, according to Mr. Wagstaff.

Announcement was made today by Thomas H. Corpe, Director of Advertising and Sales Promotion of the Buick Motor Division, that Glen McCarthy, famed NBC sports commentator, who is known as "radio's fastest talker," and Edwin C. Hill, noted commentator and newspaper writer, will join forces once again as announcers of the Tommy Farr-Joe Louis heavyweight championship fight, which will be broadcast from the Yankee Stadium, New York, Thursday, August 26, exclusively over the Red Network of the National Broadcasting Company.

Each contestant was permitted to drive as he ordinarily would drive his own car.

Each car used was a standard stock model with no devices permitted that would in any way add to fuel economy other than the standard equipment of the car as delivered to a purchaser.

An approved type certificate has just been issued by the United States Bureau of Air Commerce to Waldo Waterman, designer and builder of the Waterman flying automobile, on a stock Studebaker six cylinder motor used in the new type aircraft.

Only two other motor car engines have been granted the official stamp of approval by our government for use in aircraft, and a six cylinder of popular make and Plattekill, Aug. 24.—A depth of 256 feet has been reached on Shaft No. 5 of the New York city water supply's aqueduct, located on the Dayton farm, east of Plattekill. The shaft is 17 feet wide, and when completed will be 889 feet deep. Eight hour shifts make activities incessant 24 hours a day. Each time the depth of 31 feet is reached by the drillers, the concrete workers commence concreting walls to prevent water from seeping in. Blasting continues at all hours of the day and night, as much rock is encountered. Frazier and Davis, contractors for the construction work of the shafts, employ approximately 58 men on the four shafts which they are in charge of constructing in Marlborough, Chelsea, Ireland Corners, and Plattekill. Dept. Engineer, Ne. Holmdredge has voiced the opinion that work on the shafts and tunnels for the aqueduct will continue throughout a period of 10 years. Engineers Wiley and Michaels, who are working at V. B. Wager's home, are spending the week-end with their families in Connecticut and New Jersey.

After leaving college in 1932, he returned to Kingston and, while there, organized the high school alumni into an active organization, which died shortly after Jacobs left Kingston three years ago. His first position in New York was on the editorial staff of the Mickey Mouse Magazine. His residence is at 495 West End avenue, New York, although he spends his week-ends in Kingston with his parents.

PREDICT PROSPEROUS YEAR FOR FARMERS.

Washington, Aug. 24 (AP).—Government economists predicted today that marketing of this season's principal crops plus government benefits will put $9,000,000,000 in the pockets of farmers, making it their most prosperous year since 1929.

This figure is over a billion dollars more than 1935 cash farm income, which was $7,865,000,000, and more than double the 1929 depression low of $4,235,000,000. The 1929 total was $10,479,000,000.

Wheat, apples and tobacco will show largest gains, they said.

Nearly 200 prospective dentists passed the tests, conducted by the University of the State of New York, and now qualify for their licenses to practice.

Townsend Club Meeting

The Townsend Club will meet at Mechanics' Hall, 14 Henry street, Wednesday evening, at 8 o'clock. Much interest is being expressed since the splendid rally at Forsyth Park, August 15, when Mayor Ash of Johnson City, N. Y., and Mervin Castellane of Birmingham, addressed the group defining the General Welfare Act of 1919, and the Townsend movement as a practical solution of the need of our times. There will be a brief program Wednesday evening and a catered supper will be served. All interested are cordially invited.

The Basques inhabit the Spanish provinces of Biscaya, Guipuzcoa and Alava, and the southwest region of the Bases-Tyreneas department in France.

Clarence Post, (center, kneeling in white shirt), was the winner of the pie-eating contest held recently at Barmann Park in connection with one of the "Community Nights." It was evidently a pleasant experience for the entrants who smeared themselves to the limit.

MODENA

Modena, Aug. 21.—Plans are complete and all is in readiness for the annual clam bake to be served in Hasbrouck Memorial Hall on Thursday evening, August 26, at 6 and 7.30 o'clock.

The bake is served under the direction of the official board of the Modena Methodist Church, and proceeds from the affair will benefit the church. Out of town residents who are accustomed to attend these bakes, and those anticipating the event, are advised to phone in their reservations, as tickets will not be sold at the time of the bake, according to authoritative reports.

Officers and local leaders of the Modena Home Bureau unit are urgently requested to attend the business meeting Friday afternoon, August 27, at Mrs. Winfield Jenkins' home in Clintondale. At this time cooperation is desired and necessary to arrange the program for the coming season's activities in order that a constructive list, and one that will include projects to benefit members, may be composed.

Local members of the Plattekill Grange attended the annual clam bake served to Grange members at the hall Saturday evening.

Mrs. Cross has been touring Europe all summer and is now at Crosspatch for a few days before resuming her duties on the staff of the New York Times.

Mrs. Cross writes as follows: "I had a grand time all up and down Europe from London to Paris and Rome and back to Edinburgh and the Scotch Highlands and North Wales before sailing for home.

"But its good to get home too. And I hope all my old friends and neighbors will come up to Crosspatch Saturday evening for one of our old-time neighborly dances. Everybody is invited even if they haven't been at Crosspatch before. The sign of the 'Good Neighbor' is always out."

Seek Huge Negro.

New York, Aug. 24 (AP).—A huge negro was sought by police today as the slayer of Jacob Wender, 57, well-to-do Bronx tailor, whose gasoline-saturated body was found flaming in the washroom of his cleaning and pressing shop. A policeman who forced entrance into the building early yesterday found the body, a charred towel wrapped about the face as a gag. A red-stained piece of lead pipe was nearby.

A LOVELY WEDDING DAY IS YOURS IF YOU PLAN DETAILS, EXPENSES

Resolve! You'll have a perfect wedding day. No questions about who pays for what. No unforeseen etiquette problems. No forgotten details.

So list now the things to be done, who shall do them and when — and happily cross them off!

Are you going to have a church wedding? A reception? The bride and her family arrange for church and minister. They provide the decorations, invitations and refreshments — pay the sexton's and organist's fees. Invitations, the bride mails three weeks before the wedding. She writes a thank-you note for each gift the day it arrives.

If you're having a small home wedding, engraved announcements are usually sent to friends; you can't invite. They're mailed on the wedding day, after the ceremony.

The groom? He buys the ring, the license and pays the minister with a crisp new bill.

On his list, too, are a bouquet for his bride, boutonnières for all the men of the wedding party, and often boutonnières for the bridesmaids and corsages for the bride's mother and his.

For each important detail of your wedding, consult our 40-page booklet, HOW TO PLAN YOUR WEDDING. Informal and formal weddings; etiquette for the bridal party, guests.

Send 15c for our booklet, HOW TO PLAN YOUR WEDDING, to Kingston Daily Freeman, Home Institute, 109 West 15th Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

Queen of Flower Festival Will Be Chosen on Sept 7

Mayor C. J. Heiselman will formally open the annual flower festival and baby pageant in the municipal auditorium on Tuesday evening, September 7. An interesting program has been arranged for the opening of this annual event including the presentation of a flower pageant, "The Frolic of the Seasons", and the selection of the queen for the 1938 festival.

Only young women who are residents of Ulster county are eligible to be chosen for queen, and they will be permitted to wear any kind of a costume, except abbreviated or bathing suits, which are barred. This annual festival has grown to such proportions that it has been deemed wise each year to select a queen for the following year's festival.

Already a number of beautiful young women have enrolled in the contest for queen, and those who desire to enter should communicate with Mrs. Fred P. Luther of 50 Downs street, who is general chairman in charge of the festival. Her telephone number is 2116.

The annual baby pageant will be held on Wednesday evening, Mrs. Newton Pessenden on behalf of the Junior League will judge one of the baby events, it was announced today.

Baby Snatched in Chicago Shopping District Monday

Chicago, Aug. 24 (AP)—Police officials pressed every available man into the search today for a three months old girl and the abductor who snatched her from a baby carriage in full view of hundreds of shoppers.

The child, Diane Carol, disappeared from the carriage outside a grocery in the north side Wilson Avenue district while her mother, Mrs. Dorothy Lucas, 22, was making supper purchases yesterday.

The abductor apparently escaped without arousing the suspicion of anyone in the street crowds. Police were unable to find anyone who had seen the baby taken. Nor did they uncover a plausible motive.

Mrs. Lucas waited nearly an hour before notifying police. She said she thought her husband, Herman, 31, had taken the baby as a joke during her 10 minutes absence and would soon return. Police found the father at home, unaware of the abduction.

Mother Collapses
The distraught mother collapsed when she realized the child was gone. The baby was still being nursed by Mrs. Lucas, who described her as having brown eyes and brown hair, an olive skin, weighing 13 pounds and wearing a white dress and pink knitted shoes.

AMES OF STATES STARTS ARGUMENT

Translation of Indian Names Disputed.

Washington—Smithsonian institution and the Indian linguistic system, the commonly accepted translation of the Indian names by many states.

Alaska, who like to think that their state was Chocoma, "the land of the sun," were told that derivation suggested "thicket cut," or possibly "medicine gathering," the experts insist, "does not mean 'dark and bloody land,' but more likely 'level country,' from the Iroquois term 'Kanyawanta-ga'."

Remembering that citizens like to see their state names convey certain ideas, the experts contend that the Indian name was little given to expressing poetical talent in place names, living as he did before the days of suburban real estate development.

Compulsory Poetical Anyhow.

On the basis of latest researches, the Smithsonian gave the following translations:

Arizona: "Place of the little springs" or "place of the few springs."

Ohio: "Beautiful river" in the sense of good for camping or fishing.

Illinois: "The people" from the Algonquin root "Illini," meaning man.

Texas: "Friends" or "allies" from the Hasiana word "tehas."

Dakota: "Feeling friendly" from the identical Sioux word.

Missouri: "He of the big canoe," not "dwellers of the Big Muddy" as given by most dictionaries.

Minnesota: "Land of the sky-blue water," from the Sioux word "Minne," meaning water, and the Sioux word "sota," meaning clear but not perfectly clear.

Oklahoma's "Red People," Oklahoma: "Red People" from the Choctaw.

Nebraska: "Flat Water" from the Sioux phrase "Ibithasca."

Wyoming: "On the plain" from the Delaware Indian term "AlChuwomink," not "Field of Blood," the reputed meaning. That name was applied by Pennsylvania settlers.

Massachusetts: "Big hill" from the Algonquin words "massa" meaning big, and "wadshen" meaning hill.

Connecticut: "On the long tidal river," from the Algonquin "quinnipiac."

Iowa: "Sleepy ones," from "ayauwaba" applied by the Dakota Indians as a term of ridicule.

The derivations of Arkansas and Tennessee the experts were unable to determine.

French Build Largest Observatory in Europe

Paris.—The largest observatory in Europe is now being constructed at Forcalquier in the department of the Basses-Alpes.

A committee of astronomers and physicists has been searching for an appropriate spot upon which to build the observatory—which will be second in size only to that on Mount Wilson in California—for more than a decade. The choice eventually fell upon the little provincial town of Forcalquier.

This little village was chosen because it is perched at a height of more than 2,000 feet in the mountains, because of the unusual clarity of the atmosphere there and because of the excellent weather.

Three years will pass before the work can be completed. Included in its up-to-date equipment will be 80-inch telescope, the largest in Europe and the third largest in the world.

The new observatory, according to Jean Perrin, undersecretary of the French Academy of Sciences, will be one of the most important links in the international astronomical service which he is now organizing.

Minnesota Skeletons Antedate Indians' Days

ergus Falls, Minn.—Three skeletons, believed to date to a remote prehistoric age, have been discovered in a cave. Scientists are making a study of the bones. They resemble the skulls of Indians and the sockets are much higher in the jawbones.

The jawbones are very large and protruding. It is believed that they antedate anything found in Minnesota.

Man Human Hair To Be Used in Rugs

Germany.—Human hair is in demand in Germany. The government is collecting shorn locks from barbershops in the interests of a four-year plan. The hair will be spun and used in the manufacture of felt and rugs to replace the shortage in textile.

If the Grunewald Home Leaders win this evening, they'll be 1937 champions of the City Baseball League.

In two games to date, the Bakers have won over the strong Berardi A. C., coping the first engagement 2-1, and the second, 4-2.

"We'll make it three in a row tonight, and sew up the series," said Manager Charley Diers.

Ralph DeCicco, boss of the Berardis, is hopeful concerning tonight's outcome, and prays that the law of averages will turn against the Grunies.

"I'd hate to lose three in a row," he said. "The boys feel the same way about it and we're going to make a hard stab at those Home Leaders."

DeCicco thought he'd start Charley Diers on the mound, with Julius Chick and "Spot" Cullen in reserve. Diers is anxious to get even with the Bakers for the 2-1 trimming they gave him in the first game.

Toddy, Uhl, hero of the Grunewalds, will begin the flinging task for the Bakers. Today turned the Berardis back in the inaugural of the series, then relieved Paul Misore in the second, which his team won, 4-2.

Record crowds witnessed the other series games, and another large turnout is expected this evening.

If the Berardis come through with a victory, the next game will be played Wednesday. If the Grunewalds win, it'll be all over for the season, and they'll get the Freeman trophy significant of the city championship.

Starting time of tonight's game is 6 o'clock.

Believe-or-Not Story Is Related in Adirondacks

Many legends, some of them recorded for posterity in glibly written phrases, others still retold only by word of mouth in the homes of native, exist of Adirondack, Chas. N. Y., named for the famous two-mile gorge formed by the Ausable river as it rushes through on its way to Lake Champlain, says a writer in the New York World-Telegram.

One story goes that, at the narrowest point in the chasm, where the river becomes an angry torrent, a bridge once spanned the forty feet from towering cliff to cliff. This crossing was allowed to decay, however, even though the rude and simple framework was the only span for miles along the river. At the time of the tale it had just offered its last bit of resistance to the elements and had tumbled headlong into the churning waters, only a single beam remaining.

One night following, a Max Morgan, a clergyman, just returned from abroad, where he had spent several years, set out to ride on horseback to the home of old friends on the opposite side of the chasm. As he proceeded toward the chasm darkness fell and a mist settled close to the ground. Knowing nothing of the ruin of the bridge, he confidently urged his horse to go on, let loose the reins, and abandoned himself to reverie.

Horse and rider approached the river (Morgan could hear it dashing below) and what he thought was the bridge. Suddenly the animal stopped, quivering and panting, as if sensing impending disaster.

Aroused now from his lethargy but still unaware of the danger Morgan encouraged the horse to go on. Finally the steed responded, picked his way across the precariously lodged single bar to the other side, and then, believe it or not, trotted to his destination, with his rider unperturbed.

Highest Tides in the World

The highest tides in the world are the spring tides at the head of the Bay of Fundy, on the coasts of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, where they reach 70 feet. In the Santa Cruz river, Argentina, the rise is 40 feet, and at Cape Virgin, in the Straits of Magellan, they reach an equal height. In the Bristol channel, England, 44 feet is attained; along the Welsh coast, 36 feet; at Liverpool, 26 feet; at St. Malo, France, 35 feet. At no place in the Orient or along the African coast or our western coast are any such heights reached. Bombay's high tide is seventeen feet; Surat, the highest in India, nineteen feet. At the other extreme is Trincomalee, Ceylon, where the neap tide reaches a height of only one foot. The highest tide in the United States is found at Eastport, Me., which rises to a height of twenty and one-half feet.

Going Strong

LEFTY GROVE

HE HAS STAGED A GREAT COMEBACK SINCE HIS ARM WENT "DEAD" IN 1934

HE NO LONGER HAS THE BLINDING SPEED OF HIS EARLY ATHLETIC DAYS BUT HE MANAGES TO WIN HIS SHARE OF GAMES

THE VETERAN RED SOX HURLER HAS PASSED THE 250 MARK IN SCORING MAJOR LEAGUE VICTORIES

He has passed the 250 mark and, in this respect, stands head and shoulders above other active big league hurlers. Waite Hoyt, taking part in his 20th big league campaign, has more than 230 wins but there is little likelihood he will add many to that total. The same is true of old Jesse Haines. Jesse has 210 major league victories, but he is 41. At that age wins in the big show are few and far between. Earl Whitehill has gone over the 200 mark, but the rest of the field isn't even close.

Grove has had a remarkable career. A colorful figure with his once blinding speed, he has had his ups and downs. There have been several occasions when his steel-spring arm seemed to have lost its strength. It appeared that Connie Mack had sold the Red Sox a pitcher without an arm when Lefty reported to Boston in 1931.

The Red Sox had paid something like $125,000 in cash and a couple of ball players for Grove, who was the main reason for the deal. After having won 24 games for the Philadelphia Athletics in 1932, the best he could do in '34 for the Red Sox was to break even with eight wins and eight lost.

He bounced back in '35 to win 20 games and to lead the American League with an earned run credit of 36 and he again led the league in the earned run column.

Lefty is doing better than fair this season with 17 wins by mid-August. For a pitcher who depended so much on speed in the early part of his career, Grove is bearing up remarkably well.

NOTES FOR SPORTSMEN

Albany, Aug. 22.—Nearly a million trout and well over a half million black bass were taken from the waters of the state in 1935, when the disciples of Isaac Walton caught nearly two and one-half million fish of all species, or an average of over 28 fish for each fisherman reporting. This imposing total was reported by less than 85,000 fishermen. Over 141,000 reported no fish taken and 156,000 holders of the combined fishing, hunting and trapping licenses made no report whatsoever. As in the case of the game census, it has been estimated by the Conservation Department officials that this known total of fish caught represents about one-half of the number actually taken from the streams, lakes and ponds.

During the years the Conservation Department has been stepping up its output in the hatcheries, stream improvement work has been going on for several years. A fight has been waged against pollution and for the past two years weather conditions have been good enough so that few streams have dried up. These factors combined to be producing results, judging by the 1935 fish census.

Seven years ago—in 1929—over 1,000,000 trout were caught. Since then the catch has dropped each year. In 1931 going down to a low of 704,000. In 1934 it was reported at 782,600. For 1935 the total reported was 937,424.

Lake trout catches remained fairly constant, with 41,418 for 1935 as compared with 42,052 for the previous year. The same applied to muskellunge, this giant game fish total being set at 9,747, an increase of five over 1934.

The black bass catch was what pleased Conservation Department officials. This was recorded at 613,921, the largest ever noted. It is 120,000 higher than the 1934 reported take and over 125 per cent above the 1929 total of 276,000.

A total of 729,788 pickerel, pike and pike perch was reported, a jump of slightly over 8,000 above 1934. Otisco white fish and white fish each showed increases over the year before with totals of 6,388 and 19,087 as compared with 5,489 and 14,161 respectively for 1934.

Each year the sportsmen are asked to furnish the totals of fish and game taken the year before. This is done when they secure their license. The 1936 licenses, the stubs of which were returned to the department in January and February of this year, were tabulated during the spring and summer months and the 1935 census of game and fish compiled.

There were 491,021 persons who bought fishing, hunting and trapping licenses in this state in 1935. Of that number there were 39,156 who reported taking fish in 1935, 44,900 who stated they took fish and game. The number who reported no fish caught was 441,870 and 156,616 made no report at all. In addition, it is estimated there are well over 125,000 landowners and their families who fish streams or lakes on their own lands and several thousand women who fish. None of these require licenses.

Guy Fawkes was hanged during the reign of James I as a conspirator in the Gunpowder Plot to blow up the Houses of Parliament.

Hubbell vs. Cubs Today to Boost Giants to Top Rank

Standing of Clubs in Major Leagues

(By The Associated Press.)

The Giants may have their backs to the wall, but at least it's their own wall.

Their New York National League candidates for a five-cent world series aren't the iron-clad invincibles in the Polo Grounds that the sure-fire Yankees are in their ball yard just across the Harlem river. The Giants may have lost 456 more than twice as many home games—22 to 10—as the Ruppert riot squad, but even so their record there is better than on the road.

The short targets in right and left field, familiar to Mel Ott and Co., may stand the Terrymen in good stead as they start today an 11-day game stand against the Yankees that opens with a brief but potentially decisive two-game set with the Cubs.

Charley Grimm's Bruins go into the opening game against marauding Carl Hubbell still holding the four-game lead with which they left Chicago a week ago. A strong finish against the Reds after a poor start against the Pirates kept their margin safe. In addition, 14th washer the Giants out of double-headers with the Phillies two days in a row.

The good news that Ripper Collins might be back in another two weeks spurred the Chicagoans. The Giants, on the other hand, had three front-line performers on the doubtful list—Rowdy Dick Bartell, the peppery shortstop; Slick Castelman, who has to pitch in a harness if at all; and Sam Leslie, the slightly slow-footed but slugging first baseman.

The Yanks, swinging into the west for the last time and stacking up against the White Sox, are in much better shape to sew up the American League flag once and for all.

For virtually the first time this season, Manager Joe McCarthy had all five of his outfielders on hand. The latest to leave the list of injured and ailing is George Selkirk, who hasn't played regularly since July 1, when he bruised his shoulder, but still ranks with the leaders on his 17 homers.

Besides the Giants and Phillies the Dodgers and Reds were rained out yesterday. Today Brooklyn met the Cards in a doubleheader, while the Bees faced the fast-moving Pirates and the Phils met the Cardinals in a doubleheader.

Ted Husing, ace sports announcer, will be on the scene on Saturday afternoon to bring to the public a stroke by stroke account of the winning of the amateur title. He will be assisted by nationally known sports writers and golfing authorities who make analyses of strokes, shots and contestants.

On Beating Mirable Before Going North

Farr and Louis Finish Training, Gate Not Likely to Top $200,000

New York, Aug. 24 (AP)—Amid reported to have been guaranteed the nifty but so far ineffective $60,000.

beatings of the ballyhoo drums, sleek, brown-skinned Joe Louis and rugged Tommy Farr today get in their final training licks for Joe's first defense of the world heavyweight championship.

Louis is scheduled for his last six rounds of sparring at Pompton Lakes, N. J., Farr, in keeping with the slightly hysterical atmosphere which has pervaded his Long Branch, N. J., headquarters, has announced his intention of going the equivalent of 15 rounds to make up for a rained-out session yesterday.

They'll both take it easy tomorrow and come to New York Thursday morning to weigh in for 15 rounds or less in the Yankee Stadium Thursday night.

Partly because it is his second title bout in a year that has seen the important heavyweights in the ring a good many times, and partly because no one has conceded the British Empire championship any sort of a chance, the public has shown little interest. Unless ticket sales take a sudden jump in the next two days, the Max Baer that the fans began higher than $200,000, with Farr taking.

Jacobs Hopeful

Premont Mike Jacobs, still hopefully predicting a $300,000 gate, took steps to remedy this situation yesterday by announcing firmly that Max Schmeling would not be seen in the ring with the winner this year. He gave the lateness of the season as the main reason, but it appeared that the fact that Schmeling, conqueror of the Brown Bomber was on hand and ready to fight in September or October, was causing some customers to hold off.

The press agents probably have taken some beatings but either of the principals so far. There's been nothing eventful enough to make good copy at the Louis camp. Joe hasn't even looked at bad in training as he did before he lifted the crown from Jimmy Braddock.

Farr's big and well populated camp has been about as peaceful and quiet as Shanghai. Tony, paddy Tony has been mad at somebody almost ever since he landed and he's been surrounded by an equally peaceful group of British sports writers who have had a grand time putting him in the straits. It wasn't until Farr's ticket sales take a sudden jump in the next two days, the Max Baer that the fans began higher than $200,000, with Farr taking.

More than a month ago, Mirable knocked out Smith at the auditorium, then ran out on a rematch because he was booked to compete in international matches at the Dallas Exposition in Texas.

Smith has a lot at stake Friday, in that he might miss out on his Canadian trip by another bout to Mirable, but he's going through with the match anyhow.

"I'm sure I can beat him if I get another chance," said Smith after the first scrap, with tears in his eyes. "There was only a lucky punch he hit me with."

Mirable eluded Smith with a hard right, flush on the jaw, to knock out the international champion, who had been out in front all the way.

Frankie, the 135 pound king of the Adirondack A. A. 1, stonewalled, contradicted that the punch was a lucky one. "I saw an opening and let 'er fly," he told reporters. "And it was the hardest punch I've thrown at anyone since I started boxing."

Mirable had more than 110 fights.

The Mirable-Smith duel is expected to draw one of the largest fight crowds ever seen in the auditorium.

In addition to this great box office attraction, the Mayor's Industrial Committee has renounced Buddy Emeton, of St. Remy, with Joe Tilden, Albany sportsman, over whom he won in a sensational scrap a month ago.

Tilden claims the defeat was a knock-out over Buddy.

Emeton says he made the winning punch, a close one, Friday, located by Emeton's style and will go to work early.

Appleknockers Win Second From Icemen In City Softball Series

The Catskill Appleknockers made it two straight over the Coolers, Monday evening, at the Athletic Field in the series for the softball championship of Kingston. Final score of the game was 11-7.

Wednesday is the date of the next game, and the Coolers need that one to stay in the series. Otherwise, the Appleknockers will cop the flag by virtue of scoring three in a row. In the first game the boys of Artie Kaplan shelved the Icemen.

Last night, the Appleknockers scored four runs in the first inning and five in the third to lead 9-0. It looked like a repetition of the first slaughter until the Icemen got moving in their half of the third.

In their portion of the third, the Icemen, backed by Ed Shultz, pulled three runs, and continued to build up their total in the fourth, driving "Muscles" Balfout of the mound.

Artie Kaplan, who relieved Balfout, and received a big ovation as he stepped into the pitcher's box. He retired the last two men to bat.

Ben Toffel poured his fast one over the plate in the last two innings, played in semi-darkness, and whiffed the Icemen in order.

Andy Cohen led the Appleknockers with a double and two singles. Don Kelly rapped two doubles for the Coolers.

Kelly is playing in two series. This evening he will see action against the bat for Grunewalds against the Berardi A. C. in the City Baseball League championship series.

Charley Rock of the Appleknockers is another softball player who is playing in the baseball series, being a member of the Berardis.

Bouts in Garden Friday

Madison Square Garden will present a rousing program of fighters for the weekly summer show on Friday night. Toplin the bill is Emil Scholz, the German heavyweight, who will make his initial bow in a ten round scrum against Sandy McDonaid, the big beller from Texas.

Scholz is a protégé of Jack Sharkey, former heavyweight title holder, who thinks that the big Irishman is well on his way to the top of the heavyweight class.

Nobody is worrying much about Max Schmeling's latest plight. He brought it on himself. Before he met Braddock last June, Joe Louis wrote Max that if he won he would make his first title defense against Schmeling and split 60 per cent of the net gate with him. Nothing could be fairer than that. Well, Mike Jacobs said he harbored Max with cablegrams and transatlantic telephone calls but didn't get a rise out of him. No dice in other words. Come back next June, Mr. Schmeling.

HIGHWAY WILL LINK ITALY AND GERMANY

Expect to Cut Motoring Time to 14 Hours.

Washington, D. C.—Rome was not built in a day, but eventually it will be "made" in a day by automobile from Germany. Plans have been approved for an 800 mile super-highway linking Berlin to Rome, to be completed by 1941. Arrow-straight wherever possible, free of grade crossings and speed limits, the road will reduce motoring time between the two capitals to a predicted 14 hours. Of the total length, 47 per cent will be in Italy. From there it will cross Austria and proceed north through Germany.

"This highway of modern tempo across three countries coincides in places with an ancient Roman via," says the National Geographic society. "Both then and now the route was chosen to stimulate circulation between the sunny Mediterranean civilization of Italy and the north-facing German plain, dominated by Berlin, which slopes toward the North sea and the Baltic."

"The highway crosses Austria's eastern end, so that throughout the whole journey international motorists will drive to the right. It is in eastern Austria that 'Keep to the left' is the rule of the road."

Road Runs Due North.

"The route is a slash almost due north across central Europe. Berlin lacks only two degrees of latitude of being mapped straight above Rome."

"The capitals at opposite ends of the road have many opposites in their respective histories. Berlin was a provincial city of somewhat over 300,000 people a century ago; Rome was a world power before the beginning of the Christian era. Now Rome, with a million inhabitants, spreads its domes and fabled towers over so much more than seven hills that it is one of the favorite candidates for the title of the world's most extensive city. Berlin ranks sixth in area, but has four times the population of its southern sister city. Industries do not figure in the activities of Rome, Germany's capital on the other hand, is also her industrial center."

"The road from Rome rolls north over the broad plain of the Campagna, and climbs out of the Tiber valley over Tuscan hills. In fact, the Rome-to-Berlin highway goes over mountains, between mountains, or at least through landscape with blue hints of hills around the rim, practically the first half of its way. Exceptions are the broad rolling Campagna, which surrounds Rome, and the ample plain of the Po. Between Florence and Bologna, the road launches right over the Apennine range, the craggy shingle which runs the length of the Italian boot. On the southern side lies the peaceful town of Pistoia, whose medieval name and ironworking fame survive in the modern pistol."

"On the other side of the Apennines lies Bologna, whose university once drew famous men to its colonnaded streets. Here Galvani was studying the effect of electricity—at first called 'galvanism'—on frogs' legs at about the same time Franklin was testing kites to catch lightning.

Through Old Verona.

"Bologna's brick wall and its famous pair of leaning towers disappear across the rich plain of the Po valley as Verona is approached. There, according to Shakespeare, was staged one of the world's greatest romances, the tragic love of Romeo and Juliet."

"Passing the east side of Lake Garda, with its orange and olive grove border, the route to the north leaves the Lombardy plain and climbs upward through the Trentino district, where Roman control 2,000 years ago has more recently been disputed by German, Austrian, and French domination. The country, however, has been Italian again since the conclusion of the World war."

"The little patch of Tyrol is part of Austria's Alpine elbow nudging Germany away from Italy."

"Dominating the valley in which the Inn river is cradled between two ridges of Alps, the ancient town of 'Inn's Bridge' has grown up to be modern Innsbruck with 60,000 inhabitants, Austria's fourth largest city."

"From Innsbruck the road north toils up to Germany, entering through a pass obligingly punched by a Tyrolean glacier aeons ago. From the Bavarian Alps, highest area in Germany, travel spills down into the South German basin of Bavaria, where the southern metropolis of Munich buzzes with many industries. Nurnberg, across the Danube to the north, sticks to its traditional industry, the manufacture of playthings."

"From Nurnberg the Rome-to-Berlin route turns eastward toward Leipzig. From Leipzig the road slashes across the North German plain to Berlin."

Chicago Drives On Degenerates

Chicago, Aug. 24 (AP).—Aroused by a series of attacks on women, including the rape-slashing of a young student nurse, city and county law enforcement officials united today in a concerted drive against degenerates.

Mayor Edward L. Kelly authorized a standing $1,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of any person committing a serious sex crime.

The mayor also announced he would press for enactment of an ordinance to require all fire escapes to be equipped with electric alarms.

The man who ravished and slew Anna Kuchta, 19 year old nurse, was believed to have entered her room at Chicago Hospital by means of a fire escape. Assaults of several other women in hotels likewise climbed into rooms from fire escapes.

State's Attorney Thomas Courtney and Police Commissioner James Allman mapped a "definite plan of action" at a conference with other officials.

The plan called for special details of police at hospitals, hotels, nurses' homes and other buildings where sleeping quarters can be reached by fire escapes. It also provided for the establishment of a separate police file on degenerates and the assignment of men to guard fire escapes.

Meanwhile the search for Mrs. Kuchta's slayer continued with apparently few new clues. Police Captain Ray Crane said he had positive information the assailant was a white man. More than 80 negroes arrested on suspicion were released.

Police also pressed a search for men who attacked two other women within a 48 hour period. Mrs. Anna Hollander, 50, was knocked unconscious on a street Sunday night. Miss Florence Swanson, 34, night superintendent of nurses, was slashed with a razor early Sunday in Jefferson Park Hospital.
